Elementary Carnival!

Be sure to mark your calendar for Friday, April 27th from 5-8 pm as there will be an elementary carnival - this fun event is for all K-5 students and their families. We hope you can all make it! There will be carnival games, food available, prizes, baskets, and so much more! Look for more information to come home soon! Thanks PTA for leading this effort!

Kindergarten Round-Up

On April 12th from 9:00am-12:00pm & 1:00pm- 6:00pm at Camden Early Childhood Center, we will have round-up for the 2018-19 school year. This is for a child who will be 5 years of age on or before August 1, 2018. Please come and register your child or children that day. If you have any questions, please contact Shelly Britton at 574-686-2362. Students will be assessed at some point on April 26th - this will be arranged during the April 12th round-up period.

Need Chicken Wire

If any of our parents have rolls of clean chicken wire they are not using and would be willing to donate to the school, could you please contact me? We are looking to build an amazing addition to our school and this would be helpful. Thanks in advance.

DCES - SIGN UP FOR THE BIRTHDAY ROCK! Contact the office for more information!

Changes for 2018-19?

Parents - if you know of anyone 'new' who is moving into our district for the 2018-19 school year, could you encourage them to let us know ASAP so we can add them to our class lists for next year? Also, sadly, if you are leaving our district, please let us know soon so we can plan for this as well. We hope to retain all our wonderful students and add more.....We added 14 new ones recently:)

Elementary National Honor Society

We are launching our first Elementary National Honor Society for DCES this year. For the first year, we are accepting applications for current 4th graders. Our plan is to grow the program over the following year. Students will be considered based on scholastic achievement, service, and leadership. More information will be shared soon with qualifying 4th graders.

Leadership Opportunity for Students

On Saturday, April 7th @ 10:00 a.m., Mr. Shidler will meet any student (along with their parent if possible) to help clean up the outside of the school and perhaps block surrounding the school. Our goal is to give some time to beautifying our own school grounds and the block around us. If you can join, plan to meet at the front doors of the school with trash bags, gloves, and a great giving attitude. We will NOT go longer than 1 hour. Hope to have several people there.

Transportation

Reminder that students will have only one pickup and one drop off point. All emergencies will need to be cleared by calling the Director of Operations at 765-564-2100 ext. 1008 or 765-490-6739. We have to make sure we have space on our buses each day so simply changing buses to go to a friend's house doesn't always work. We thank you for your support - again kids have one specific bus that picks them up and one bus that takes them home - any variation of that must be approved in advance.

Below is an article from their website:

Making Your Kids Feel Honored through Good Discipline

Have you tried all of the methods of discipline to get your kids to behave? Then maybe you need the honor approach. This is what discipline without honor looks like: A teacher told a fidgety student to sit down. When he refused, she stood over him and demanded it. Well, he sat down all right but said, "I'm sitting on the outside, but I'm standing on the inside." You see, obedience without honor only looks like it works in the short-run and it definitely doesn't work in the long-run. Teaching honor shapes a child's heart and his motivations.

The book, Say Goodbye to Whining, Complaining, and Bad Attitudes in You and your Kids! by Scott Turansky and Joanne Miller, says the key to good behavior is not in controlling your children, but in instilling honor into your family life. This is how it's done.

What is Honor?

But first, what is honor? Basically, it's three things: treating people as special by doing more than what's expected and having a good attitude. You see, when you instill honor into your family's life, you get to the heart of obedience. And when I say heart, I mean your child's thoughts, intentions, and motivations. Once a child understands and learns honor they'll be motivated on their own to behave. Here are some of the guidelines Turansky and Miller use in teaching honor.

1. Teach children to treat people as special.

To help your children begin to see how honor works, occasionally say something like this – with a smile, "I made some cookies for a snack. I wanted to honor you." Children learn how to treat people as special when they watch how their parents treat others outside the family. When your child shows dishonor to another, use it as an opportunity to teach him how to treat others as special. For example, if you hear your child make a mean comment say, "Son, that wasn't kind. I'd like you to take a break for a few minutes and come back to me when you're ready to talk about this." When your child returns, help him learn honor. You can say, "From now on, when you do something mean, I'm going to have you think of one kind thing to do." Violations of honor need to be addressed by building new habits of kindness.

2. Teach children to do more than what's expected.

When teaching children to do more than what's expected, parents can include honor in the instruction. You might say, "I'd like you to set the table. Then I want you to think of something extra to surprise me. That's showing honor." Remember: If you tell them to fold the napkins in a special way, that's obedience. If they choose to add that extra touch, it's honor.

3. Deal with a bad attitude.

Discuss the importance and benefits of a good attitude. Coach your children to have a better response. The next time your child demonstrates a bad attitude, don't just point out the negative but teach how to respond rightly. A bad attitude is a sign of an angry spirit, and the groaning, rolled eyes, sarcasm, stomping feet or disgusted looks are all attempts to communicate dissatisfaction. Gently point out these bad responses and help your children to practice better responses.

The Wise Appeal

One way to do this is through the wise appeal.

Let's look at a typical example. Fifteen-year-old Scott comes home from school and says to himself, "I'm tired. I just want to look at my phone and rest."

Just then, his mom comes in to greet him.

"Scott, I'm glad you're home from school. I'd like you to go out and mow the lawn."

Here's one way this scene could play out. Scott looks up at his mom and irritated say, "Mom! Mow the lawn? Not now. I'm tired." Then, mom feels like she has to get more intense. Instead, Scott can use the wise appeal and say, "Mom, I understand you want me to mow the grass. But I have a problem with that because I am tired right now and had a tough day at school. Could I rest and mow the lawn in two hours?"

See the difference. The wise appeal formula goes like this:

I understand you want me to because...

I have a problem with that because...

Could I please...

You can even teach preschoolers the wise appeal.

So remember, honor is the foundation for good behavior that goes beyond mere obedience.

FROM NURSE ROSS

Some common springtime ailments I see in the Health Room are bug bites and sunburns.

Bug Bites: Spring means bugs like mosquitoes, gnats, chiggers, and flies that can bite, making your child uncomfortable. To prevent bug bites, apply child-safe insect repellent, but avoid the child's hands, eyes, and cut or irritated skin. After returning indoors, wash your child's treated skin. According to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, insect repellent containing DEET should not be used on children under 2 months, and oil of lemon eucalyptus products should not be used on children under age 3.

Sunburns: Most spring sports and activities take place outdoors. It is extremely important to apply sunscreen of SPF 30 or higher before going out. Use a sunscreen that protects against UVA and UVB rays, and reapply as directed when staying outside for a length of time.
